

Springboard Group DD Drop-off / Pick-up Policy

The best way to attend a Springboard activity is usually to meet the group at the designated meeting spot, and plan on leaving or getting picked up at the end of the activity at the same spot. This way, you will get to spend the most time having fun and socializing with the other members in your group.

However, we realize that in some special cases, it may be necessary for group members to meet the group directly at the location of the activity instead of at the designated meeting spot. If this is the case, please observe the following:

- You MUST let your group leader know you are planning on doing this before the day of the activity. This way, you can get specific details on where the group will be, and when, and you can plan with your group leader where a good alternate meeting place and pick-up location would be.
- You are responsible for getting directions to the location of our activity ahead of time. This is one of the reasons that you need to let your group leader know beforehand. Chances are, on the day of the activity, that your group leader might not be prepared (or have time) to give directions to your ride from whatever location they are driving from, especially if it is in an area he/she is not very familiar with!!!
- Springboard will only drop off members at the designated pick-up/drop-off locations listed on the monthly schedule. With so many people in our group, please realize that it is very difficult for the group to drop someone off at a special location, even if it closer to your home/ride.

Remember, your group leader spends a lot of time each month carefully planning activities for your group. Please don't assume that it will be possible to change the itinerary or times for the activity in order for the whole group to accommodate you or your ride at the last minute!
